President Jackson's Farewell Address. General Jackson, following the example of Washington, at his retiring from the Presidency, issued a Farewell Address, which was principally devoted to the danger of disunion, and to the preservation of harmony and good feeling between the different sections of the country. His exclamation was:

"Has the warning voice of Washington been forgotten? or have designs already been formed to sever the Union? Let it not be supposed that I impute to all of those who have taken an active part in these unwise and unprofitable discussions, a want of patrictism or of public virtue. The honorable feelings of State pride and local attachments find a place in the bosoms of the most enlightened and pure. But while such men are conscious of their own integrity and honesty of purpose, they ought never to forget henesty of purpose, they ought never to forget that the citizens of other States are their po-litical brethren; and that however mistakes they may be in their views, the great body of them are equally honest and upright with "Mutual suspicions and represents may in time create mutual hostility, and artful and designing men will always be found who are ready to foment these fatal divisions, and to inflame the natural jealousies of different sections of the country! The history of the world is full of such examples, and especially the history of Panablics.

the history of Republics.
"What have you to gain by division and dissension? Delude not yourselves with the belief that a breach, once made, may be after ward repaired. If the Union is once severe the line of separation will grow wider and wider, and the controversies which are now debated and settled in the halls of legislation will then be tried in fields of battle, and de termined by the sword. Neither should you deceive yourselves with the hope that the firine of separation would be the permanent one, and that nothing but harmony and concord would be found in the new associations formed upon the dissolution of this Union-Local interests would still be found there, and tion of common dangers, in which the people of these United States stood side by side againthe common fee; the memory of victories we by their united valor; the prosperity and happiness they have enjoyed under the present Constitution; the proud name they bear as citizens of this great Repub lic-if all these recollections and proofs of us together as one people, what tie will hold united the new divisions of empire, when these bonds have been broken and the Union dissevered? The first line of separation would not last for a single generation; new fragments would be torn off, new leaders would spring up, and this great and glorious republic would soon be broken into a multitude of petty States, without commerce, without credit, jealous of one another, armed for mutual aggressions loaded with tayer to trampled upon by the nations of Europe, until harrassed by conflicts, and humbled and de-based in spirit, they would be ready to sub-mit to the to the absolute dominion of any military adventurer, and to surrender their liberty for the cake of repose.

VII is impossible to look on the consequence that would inevitably follow the destruction of this government, and not feel indignant when we hear cold calculations about the before us a line of conduct so well calculate i to weaken its ties."

The flippant remarks made by disputants daily in the halls of Congress, is peculiarly ungrateful from the degenerate sons of American patriots, who would have preferred that their tongues should have blistered, and that their arms should have palsied, than to breathe the unfraternal mutterings and make the wicked adjurations of disunion, that shock us so frequently since the attempt has been making to organize Congress.

We hope the warning words of Washington and those of Jackson will be re-read, and that a wholesome public opinion will operate as check on any continuance of sectional strife.

Judge Hughes, of Indiana.

Indiana lost a Judge of the "Court of Claims" in the death of Judge Blackford, whose place, however, has just been filled by the confirmation of the appointment of Hon. Jas. Hughes, also of Indiana, who was in the last Congress. Judge Hughes, a native of Hampstead, Md., is but thirty-six years of age; was educated at the University of Indiana, and commenced the practice of the law at Bloomington, Ind., in 1842. He served as lieutenant of regular infantry in the Mexican War, and at its close resumed the practice of law. He was elected Circuit Judge in 1852, and 1853 resigned, and served three years as Professor of Law in the University of Indiana.

Shall the Public Works of Ohio be Sold! A bill has been twice read in one branch of the General Assembly of Ohio, authorising the appointment of three Commissioners to advertise and offer for sale, in two divisions, to the highest bidders, (payments in perpetual annuities) all the canal stock of the Stateif the payments are not regularly made the works to revert to the State.

It is idle in the first place to talk of selling this public improvement as a matter of prudence, and it is nonsense in this time of financisi stringency, to suppose any purchasers can be obtained at fair prices.

Shall We Have a System of Sewerage

One of the secrets of the success of Cincinnati has been that good business men have conducted her enterprises in education, benevolence and business. The past is secure, but we need a renewal. The old stock is dying out, and a new race is entering upon the arena to participate unitedly in carrying forward our economical interests. We want our City Councilmen to take hold of their duties in parnest, and pursue them with energy and public spirit. This city should be a true metropolis. Its natural position (its site) must be regarded. It must be sewered-thoroughly underdrained. Adequate steps must be taken now in deciding what the permanent interests of Cincinnati require; and when we are sure we are right, we should press the point, and perfect truly needed improvements. Give us, soon, full lines of sewers, or give responsible companies the power. The comfort and health of a city require it. No city, east or west, is more admirably situated for a complete drainage than Cincinnati. We are shamefully neglecting this important subject. Shall the matter now be taken up?

Ohio Editorial Convention.

A large number of proprietors and editors of this State united in a two days' conference at Tiffin, Seneca County, in this State, which closed last night with a banquet. XXXVIth CONGRESS—1st SESSION.

WASHINGTON, January 19. SENATE.—Mr. Douglas's resolution in-structing the judiciary to report a bill for the better suppression of invasion, &c., was spe-cially assigned for 1:30 P. M., on Monday

A debate of some length took place at this point, whether the Senate had a right to transact any business until the House or-ganizes. The Senate finally, by a vote of 45 to 7, overruled a point of order to that effect, and referred to a private bill on which the debate had sprang up, to the Committee on Private Land Claims.

Fifty-five hundred extra copies of the Treasury Report were ordered to be printed. Mr. King offered a resolution proposing a Select Committee to investigate whether any portion of the public printing appropriation had been applied to the support of newspapers, especially the Constitution, and Pennsylvanian, and Argus, and as to the contract, said to have been made by Mr. Bowman, by which he was to receive $20,000 per year; also, whether any member of the government was privy to it, and also what reduction can be a substantial and also what reduction can be a substantial and also what reduction can be a substantial and a substanti

Additional Foreign News.

New York, January 19.—The London Times says that in the event of no Congress being held, all that will then remain will be to recognive the Central Italian States, which have been formed out of Romagna and the Duchies, either as an independent kingdom, or as part of the Sardinian monarchy, to take our stand on accomplished facts, and leave the Popeand his supporters to their remedy.

on accomplished facts, and leave the Popeand his supporters to their remedy.

The Daily News remarks that the projected Congress is indefinitely postponed, and that no friend of the cause of freedom in Italy need regret the temporary difficulty in which diplomacy finds itself, as every month gained confirms the liberty of the Italian States, and justifies the resolution before the world.

The Paris correspondent of the Times, writing on the lat inst., says that it was then reported in Paris that the Congress would be summoned at the end of January, but the exact day was not known. A dispatch dated Rome, January 3, says that the Duke de Grammont had positively stated to the Holy See that the pamphlet, The Pope and the Congress, does not contain the programms of France. The explanation produced an excellent effect on the Pope, and it was hoped that he would not object to being represented in the Congress.
